Jeffrey King, SES
Principal Deputy Chief Information Officer (DCIO)
U.S. Department of the Treasury

Jeffrey King is Principal Deputy Chief Information Officer (DCIO) at the U.S. Department of the Treasury and is a member of the Senior Executive Service. Jeff's portfolio spans infrastructure operations, cloud operations, and security operations, along with governance, risk, and compliance. Jeff began his career at Booz Allen, spending over a decade engineering and operating enterprise-scale cybersecurity platforms for the military and intelligence communities. He then spent six years at the Department of the Treasury, where he designed and operated department-wide shared security services, and later served as an advisor to multiple senior technology and intelligence leaders. Thereafter, Jeff worked for five years in professional services at Promontory and Deloitte, where he worked with senior executives in large, global financial institutions to evolve and implement intelligence-led, threat-focused cybersecurity programs. Jeff received his Bachelor of Science in Analytical Finance from Wake Forest University.
